THE CHAINAGE GUIDE
v 9.3

S. ARAVIND

Dedicated to my thaathaa,
Sri S. V. Parthasarathy,
who passed on his 'railfan' gene to me

Smoke from the Steam Engines!

I have known Aravind for more than a decade and a half now. His diligent work in every small endeavour showed up in his quest for perfection. As with any other things from filing RTI applications, researching railway stuff, etc., Aravind always put his best foot forward.

The compilation that you now have - the Chainage Guide - is a result of years of painstaking research, scores of RTIs, asking information from fellow railfans and senior citizens, and much more. I have no doubt that this publication will be of great use not just for the railfans, but also to the general public at large. I am also sure that Aravind will not stop here - improvement will make him release more versions of the Chainage Guide with more details in the days to come.

Sridhar Joshi 'SJ'
IRFCA - MAS

When a Railfan in a man meets the mathematician in him, a Chainage file results! This is what has happened with Aravind Sethuraman, a meticulous Chartered Accountant who has fallen in love madly with the Indian Railways. A Chain is a measure of distance of 22 yards and when chains are linked together they become a chainage or the distance between Point A and Point B, which is usually expressed in kilometres these days. Aravind has changed this mundane information of the distances between stations as found in railway timetables into a vibrant entity by detailing what can be found enroute. For example, the distance between Uttamar Koil and Tiruchirapalli Town stations is only 6 kms, but how many casual travellers know that there are two big rivers, Kollidam and Cauvery, in between with major bridges across them which help the temple town of Srirangam, an island, to be in touch with the outside world? Read Aravind's Chainage file for many, many more such titbits and attain travelling enlightenment! It's not just a read, but an experience in itself!

Right, Proceed….!!

What is Chainage?

Imagine you are travelling from Chennai to Delhi. The Timetable or for that matter, online rail travel sites will say that the distance is around 2,000 km. If that be the case, if I peep out of my train window and watch the km marks at say Warangal, they should say 650. However, the catenary mark or km mark will call out only 380. This is the marking from Wardha Jn. and not from Chennai !!

This system of km markings along the railway lines is called 'Chainage'. Thus, to understand where you are precisely in a given section, how much has been covered and how much more is yet to be covered to a particular station ahead of you in that section, knowledge of these km markers gets to be important. The commentary given below can help a reader get familiar with the nuances of it. I have consciously covered only the major points and left out minute details to retain interest of the reader.

Tables have been arranged to be as far as consistent with their historical relevance and geographical proximity. MSL data is approximate and may not represent what is available in the station nameboards.

V4 switched to portrait mode for easy viewing in a smartphone. It brought in details of tunnels, waterway bridges, items of railfan interest along the way, divisional interchange points and highlighted divisional headquarters as well. V6 brought in interesting information on old names of railway stations, (except British Raj spellings). Halt/ Flag stations have been marked with a H. I have attempted to shade and highlight prominent ghat/ forest sections in brown colour. Smaller spurs have got integrated in main tables in V7. V8 has got tables re-aligned and made near exhaustive for IR. The column between MSL and Station Code is coloured/ shaded to denote whether the section was MG or NG in the past (refer 'Legend'). V9 is an expanded version to include chainage in neighbouring countries.

Major Zero Points:

Chainage is closely associated with the various independent railway companies that existed in India pre-Independence. Chains have zero points at their natural start-point i.e. Headquarters, major interchange point etc. Following compilation of stations pertains to major chains along with their corresponding branches

Madras Beach Jn:
Rameswaram 669 via Mainline (Virudunagar 622 via MNM), Tuticorin 654 via Chordline (Quilon 762 via VPT), St. Thomas Mount 24 via MRTS. Interestingly, Virudunagar Jn gets two chains – one via Main 622 and one via Chord 538, similar to Tiruchirappalli Jn 405 and 340.

Madras Central and Royapuram:
The historical 0 point was Royapuram. The chains are from RPM were - Bangalore City 356, Mangalore Central 885 (via IGU-PTJ by-pass), Wadi Jn 671 and Vishakapatnam 779

However, post construction of a new terminus in Madras Central, a slight change was required to not disturb the continuity of the chainage. Distance from MAS to VPY was incidentally the same as the distance from RPM to VPY and hence there was no problem in continuing the chainage. But there was a ~1 km increase between the distance to KOK from RPM and MAS. With an intent not to disturb the entire chain to VSKP, the extra km between BBQ and KOK was numbered as Km 2A. Hence the chain that we see from KOK till VSKP is ex-RPM.

Bangalore City Jn:
Mysore Jn 138, Guntakal Jn 281 (in MG days. However, BG chain is from BYPL) and Miraj Jn 748

Bori Bunder Victoria Terminus:
Roha 144, Wadi 605 (Manmad 504 via DD, Miraj 565 and Latur Road 562 via KWV), Nagpur 837 via Akola (BPQ Outer 893 via WR, Pimpalkuti 922 via MJRI), Delhi 1541 (Purna Jn 950 via KNW, Naini 1350 via ET, Nagpur 1042 via ET, CWA 990 via AMLA, Mahadiya 1336 via BINA, Maksi 1308 via BINA, GWL 1321 via GUNA, Manikpur 1419 via JHS, Kanpur Central 1349 via JHS, Bhind 1307 via Gwalior, Alwar Jn 1520 via MTJ, Agra Fort 1347 via AGC, Jamuna Bridge 1351 via AGC). This could easily win the award for the chain with most branches, hands-down!

Bombay – Churchgate:
Mathura Jn 1245, Okha 994 (Porbandar 959 via KNLS, Gandhidham Jn 796 via VG)

Howrah:
Vishakapatnam 879 (Puri 499 via KUR, Gomoh 356 via KGP)
Nagpur 1130, 1131, 1244 and 1407 (Ballarshah 1252 via G, JBP 1229 via G, Mandla Fort 1162 via G, Titlagarh 744 via JSG, Katni Jn 1039 via BSP)
Ghaziabad Jn 1432 via Grand Chord (Farrukhabad 1318 via SKB)
Saharanpur Jn 1591 via Main Line (Lucknow 1055 via SLN and 1095 via FD, Tupkadih 412 via ASN, Sini Jn 407 via ASN, Bondamunda Jn 585 via MURI)

Trivia:

* The chains from Gudur Jn 93 and Katpadi Jn 104 end at Tirupati as it was the BG/MG interchange point for some time.
* The MG chain from Dindigul Jn went to Coimbatore Jn 167. This is why CBE is still named as a Junction (BG/ MG interchange facility)
* The southernmost station of India, Kanniyakumari 16 is not in a big chain, but in a relatively insignificant branch chain from Nagercoil Jn. Similarly, the eastern most station of India, Lekhapani 55, is in a chain from Makum Jn
* The chain from Shoranur Jn running South goes all the way to CHTS 115 and does not end at ERS 107.
* The line from Wadi Jn to Kazipet Jn goes from Begumpet 179 'into' Hyderabad Deccan 185 and 'comes out' to Secunderabad Jn 194. Thus, there are 3 stations that have two markings technically. Necklace Road 181/ 189, Khairatabad 183/ 187 and Lakdikapul 183/ 186.

* There are two lines that run parallel between Duvvada Jn and VSKP. Thus, these stations have two markings, one from Madras (RPM) and another from Howrah: Duvvada (actually an extension from Simhachalam station) 761/ 883, Gopalpatnam 772/ 872 and Marripalem 776/ 874

* The line from Wardha 758 to BZA starts with a continuation of the chain from BBVT, goes all the way to BPQ outer (Madras end) 893 where it jumps to 135 when SCR takes it over. This number is a chain from Wardha Jn. and it ends at KZJ 367 and at BZA 585

* Chains meet mid-way ADB 243 ex-MUE and PMKT 922 ex-BBVT

* Four chains reach Nagpur from Howrah:

1130 via Kanhan Jn and Kalumna (drops at outer)

1131 via KNHN, KAV and Itwari Jn (goes all the way to the station)

1244 via Gonda Jn, Nagbhir Jn and ITR (drops at ITR)

1407 via G, Nainpur Jn and ITR (drops at ITR)

* Saharanpur Jn at 1591 in the chain via Main Line from Howrah is the highest km number in any chain in India.

Inflated distances:

Certain sections can have inflated distances for ticketing (commercial) purposes, whereas the actual distance on ground might be different.

Hassan Jn – Mangalore Central for Shiradi ghat section

Londa Jn – Vasco da gama for Braganza ghat section

Bombay VT – Roha at Roha end of the chain

KRCL stretch – flat 40% increase on actual km

Ambala Cantt – Kalka for ghat section

New Bongaigaon Jn – Kamakhya for the bridge at Goalpara

Chennai Central – Bangalore City Jn as the Down line takes a longer route through Javadi hills

Bombay VT – ET at Harsud for longer line constructed to accommodate back waters of Narmada dam, retaining the old chain unaffected

Mudkhed – Pimpalkutti section for ghat section

Aryankavu ghat section (extra 10 km during MG days)

How it all started ?

At this juncture, I would like to thank V Srinivasa Prasad (VSP) for creating the interest in me to study chains. It was on one fine evening Railfanning session at Hussain Sagar Jn drooling at a headlamps-on WAP-4 #22606 with Godavari Exp and the second oldest WDM-2 loco of India, 18041 led Haripriya/ Rayalaseema Exp combo that he shared the interesting km markings of Hyderabad station. This kindled the interest in me to look out for actual km markings, dawning on my mind that believed (illogically though!) that km markings follow the ones given in Timetables and did not get any chance to think about the logical flaw in it. The end point is the Chainage file and this commentary should ideally wrap it up. I think I have done justice to the thought process that started there!

Note: The original BG trunk line ran straight north of Okhla station through what is now India Gate and Rajiv Chowk (Connaught Place) to New Delhi station. This alignment was abandoned when New Delhi city was developed.

Note: Double BG+MG gauntleted tracks existed between Raja ki Mandi and Belanganj (MG lines coming from Agra Idgah station)

What Friends Feel...

This is a compendium of feedback received from my friends, who have been actively encouraging me on this journey!

The Chainage Guide is an absolute delight for every rail traveller. Compiling a ton of information into a 600-page book is a no mean joke. Credits to Aravind for the herculean efforts. If it is Google maps for the roads, it would be the Chainage guide for the rails. Having known Ara for almost 15 years now, the efforts and time he invests in collecting information leaves me spellbound. I'm absolutely sure that this wouldn't stop with Indian Railways alone and would continue with Foreign Railways too. Keep continuing the great work, Ara. Cheers. (Ramkrishnan MA)

Ever since, I got the cherished copy from my good friend Ara (with whom, I share lots of matters of esoteric interests, like classical Tamil, temples history & architecture, geography, music, movies, astronomy & astrology and of course railways) I have been using it as ready reckoner for my doubts on railway lines, sections & chainage details.., A very arduous & pain staking work, beautifully done by Ara and result is what we have in our hands.. A lovely ready reckoner handbook. The first edition has raised the expectations on the second, upcoming one as its proposed to include neighbouring country railways too. Challenges take higher trajectory but, I am sure Ara wud surmount them with his grit and determination. We are always there to assist him if he requires with whatever support he needs.
(Ravi Swamy)

I have known Aravind for a long time now. His enthusiasm about collecting Railway details has made me spellbound many a time. And when he brought out the Chainage of Indian Railways i was amazed by his dedication to this form of getting details of the kilometre distances between stations and various sections involved in this. Now that he is planning to bring out his next edition of the Chainage, I feel really excited about it and waiting to get a copy for myself. Hearty Congratulations and my Best Wishes to you, Aravind.
(Vimalakar NC)

The chainage file by our beloved Aravind is a boon for all the railfans especially when they are travelling in a new territory. The effort put in to make such a detail is enormous and this shows his love and affection about the job he undertook. From the start on the version 1, to the last previous version 8, the improvisation is extraordinary. The details provided thereupon has made everyone awestruck. Simply from the distance markers by the side of the track, Ara has brought us the knowledge about the stations, junctions, tunnels and the rivers we cross which are immensely useful. Now, further proceeding to the version 9, Aravind is going to enlighten us about the whole of IR prior to the independence, i.e., about the lines of Pakistan, Bangladesh and about Sri Lankan railways which is going to be something special. I am sure that all the railfans including myself are looking forward to this wonderful edition with glee. Apart from his regular work, Aravind has taken time to bring about this kind of a herculean job, which itself shows his love and affection towards the IR, its history and the technical aspects all together. Keep it up Ara. Hearty congratulations on this great effort.
(Sampath Kumar S)

The Chainage Guide is unlike anything I have seen in my life. This voluminous coverage of IR tracks helps us place remotest of locations; all we need is a marking. I'm yet to grasp it completely, and it's already reached v9.0. Hats off to your tremendous efforts, anna.
(Adithya V)

Aravind's Chainage file is a must accompaniment for a rail enthusiast. Look of it may seem to be a railway station listing, but it is full of railfan information such as division handovers, tunnel information, rivers, state boundaries etc. The edition V9, will feature railway information per British India (prior 1947), which will surely offer chainage perspective on our neighbours. The Chainage guide has come a long way and nobody is a bigger fan of it than me. Kudos Aravind for your Chainage.
(Gowri Sankar R)

Railway Chainage: Surveying every inch of our IR and a treasure both to Railfan and Railmen. Kudos to the great effort!
(Simon James)

It is a unique book that has incorporated all the bridges, tunnels and kilometre readings of every division of a vast and gigantic organisation like IR. It's a priceless treasure trove for every railfan and indeed every railway man!
(Rakesh Joshi)

For a person who wants to understand railways, knowing the chainage a.k.a KM markings becomes inevitable. Since this data is not aggregated anywhere, a repository for all the chainage details is invaluable in knowing how and why there are markings as such. I have benefited greatly from this effort, thank you for doing this and all the best.
(Aravind R)

I was mesmerised by the collection of tickets by Ara, displayed at BRC, the first time I met him. Few conversations later, I knew this guy is someone different. Later, only after going through Chainage, I knew he is not someone different, but totally different! I had a collection of SR and TAAG till 2013 or 2014. I used to boast. I know this train has been extended, cancelled or upgraded. Later, when I met railfans, I knew where I stood. But, whenever I meet Ara, I'm all ears just to enrich my knowledge on Railways. Chainage is something which made me see the same working section (BZA–COA/ VSKP/ SCMN) with a different eye. From Indian Railways, now we get a chance to go through Railways in neighboring countries. Soon, with inputs from railfans all over the world, I'm sure we'll get a chainage directory on World Railways! All the very best Ara.
(Pradeep Kumar)

Aravind is known for his painstaking work, is a stickler for accuracy, and an intense person when it comes to data gathering and data crunching. His dogged pursuit of information via various sources, including those where you and I feel to have hit a hard/ concrete wall, is simply great – hats off to his perseverance. What you hold in your hand is a result of hours of burning midnight oil, days of hard work with formatting, weeks of data crunching, and months of data gathering. Do not let go of this – a treasure trove worth its weight in gold for a railfan.
(Sridhar Joshi, for the 9th version)

As a kid who grew up being passionate about train travel, I used to spend my summer holidays poring over timetables, preparing imaginary schedules with dream trains of my choice. The Southern Railway and South Central railway time tables used to provide the details of each station in their jurisdiction, but there was no such book that I had at an all India level. Samit's atlas filled in the void partially with its stunning maps, but still the question of distances remained. When I came across Aravind's chainage files, it felt like I had found a treasure I had been looking for decades. The level of details he had gone into was just stunning. Having known his passion for this project for the past few years, right from the time he came up with the initial versions, I am sure that the ninth version that he is planning is going to be another stunner. Can't wait to have a look (Sathya Narayanan T)

I know Aravind for over a decade and his quest for perfection is something that is inspiring. The last update to the Chainage guide is a testament to his efforts and attention to detail. Looking forward for the next version which includes the network in our neighboring countries. I'm sure the horizon will expand and we will see a version with chainage of the rail network in Timbuktu.

Where do I start? Do I start at the point where the idea of bringing out a book like this or do I start at when I laid my hands on the book the first time? But let me start here. The first time I heard about Ara bringing out this book, literally gave me the excitement of planning for a railfanning trip! I must say Ara won half the battle when he started implementing this idea to bring out The Chainage Guide. This book has always been a constant companion all throughout my journeys and I am left in awe to see his meticulous planning and attention to detail. Personally, I have learnt a lot of new things – from station names to rivers to state boundaries to branch lines and more, this book is a knowledge hub. Ara, I wish you the best in incorporating the new lines from neighbouring countries and this value addition to the book will definitely take it to greater heights. All the best, my friend.

So, this is the next version of this arcane, but exhaustive and illuminating work of penance by this talented person, who, I'm proud to say, is a good friend. Now, railfans eat, sleep and breathe trains. They don't take a train just to get from point A to point B. This book is of course a great asset to these nuts. However, this monumental opus is of great help to the sane travellers too. Those who take to the train out of mere necessity can keep abreast of their progress in the journey and the distance from the next big station by simply referring to this work along with the milestones (and markings on the catenary masts) they see our of their window. I can't wait to lay my hands on this latest version of the chainage file.

Chainage book was a brilliant effort to put data about the permanent way in black and white or should I say, in multicolour. It quickly became a vital companion that a railfan can't do without. Rivers, Tunnels, viaducts you knew they were coming before anyone else could even guess. Eagerly look forward to the version 9.
